EDITORIAL: Nevertheless, We Persist

“Nevertheless, she persisted.” Damning words spoken recently by a conservative senator to a liberal colleague. I take them, not as an insult, but as a mandate. Theodore Parker tried to bend the “moral arc of the universe,” by protesting the 1850 Fugitive Slave Act and gladly going to trial to defend himself and the abolitionist movement. I have read Ida Husted Harper’s monumental three-volume biography of Susan B. Anthony and marveled at Anthony’s tenacity over decades of time and worlds of space. Who can forget Martin Luther King, Jr.’s “Letter from a Birmingham Jail?” What did they have in common? They all persisted – not over weeks and months, but over years and decades – and lifetimes. And each of them was motivated by core religious values.

As I reflect on my 8 decades of life, 6 of them as a religious activist, I vividly remember the many moments of discouragement and defeat. I recall the “powers and principalities” arrayed against the movements in which I was involved. I have been tempted to “retire,” not only from active parish ministry (which I have), but from the public square (which I have not). Many do. However, I am always called back by that “still, small voice” of my religious heritage. There is a perspective here that reminds us that the Beloved Community will not be realized in my lifetime. It also suggests that we do not work alone, but nourished by our respective faiths and our faith communities. I conclude that social justice work is much more than a passing fancy, a time-limited hobby, an ad hoc address to the “sexy” issues of the day. It is very simply the work and mission of a lifetime. And, I find that the moral/religious perspective of IINYS both unique and important one as our state and nation “slog” toward justice.

The conservative senator was Mitch McConnell; the liberal colleague was Elizabeth Warren. While we are a non-partisan interfaith group, we cannot ignore a prophetic word when we see it. Recently, Warren was the speaker at the Union of Reform Judaism/Women of Reform Judaism Biennial Convention in Boston. Among other things, she said: “Our power is not a battery that is drained with use; it is like a muscle that gets stronger the more we use it.” Nevertheless, we persist.

The Rev. Dr. Richard S. Gilbert, IINYS President

LET NEW YORK VOTE: AN AFFIRMATION OF DEMOCRACY

A coalition of “goo goos” (good government groups) has put out a five-point program for expansion of voting in New York. It includes early voting, automatic voter registration, flexibility to change party affiliation, electronic pollbooks and restoration of voting rights to people on parole. For details, go to www.LetNYvote.org. For the IINYS policy position on “Enhancing Democracy as a Religious Principle,” and a backgrounder on campaign finance reform, go to www.interfaithimpactnys.org – Policy Papers and Backgrounders respectively.

UNIVERSAL HEALTH CARE IN NEW YORK STATE

There is an effort in New York State to set up a true universal health care program, NY Health. Movements start with the telling of untold stories. Share your healthcare story below to help shine light on the need for a healthcare system where coverage is guaranteed and no one is left behind. The survey below can be taken anonymously. Go to http://www.nyhcampaign.org/tell\_your\_story

REPRODUCTIVE JUSTICE REDUX

The coalition of groups working for reproductive justice is focusing on three issues this legislative session: The Healthy Teen Act, which provide for sexuality education in public schools (a high profile item especially considering the #metoo movement); the Comprehensive Contraceptive Coverage Act (providing for wider dissemination of contraceptives); and the Reproductive Health Act (which would apply the Roe v. Wade decision to New York State and move abortion from the criminal code to the health code). See events in calendar above.
